

BROODHEAD, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—J. B. Farris' shingle and grist mill was burned on the night of the 6th.

—Rev. A. J. Pike, Dr. Eugene Brown and Wm. Sayers are attending the Grand Lodge in Louisville.

—Mr. M. G. Durman and James Powell sold to J. H. Albright a nice lot of extra hogs at 3 to 3.55. Bob Thompson is buying cattle in our county.

—Rev. A. J. Pike, assisted by Rev. W. F. Holtzclaw, of Jeffersonville, Ind., will begin a series of meetings at the Baptist church, beginning on Oct. 12 at 7 p. m.

—W. D. Azvills and wife, from Annville, Jackson county, John Crowley, of Williamsburg, and Arch Moles, of Pulaski county, were in our town to see Dr. Bordett about their eyes.

—The cold wave that the signal service has been telling us about so long reached here last Sunday night, accompanied by a nice rain. Both were highly appreciated. We are glad to be cool once more.

—Wesley and Clef Smith, Levy Denny and Jack Wiggins, all of the Glade district, were arrested and tried, being accused of riding horses without the knowledge or consent of the owners. They were held over and not being able to give bail, were sent to jail.

—Wheat sowing has been delayed on account of dry weather, but since the rain seeding has been renewed with new vigor. The acreage will be larger than usual. Our farmers have learned that wheat growing can be made profitable by using fertilizers, deep plowing and proper preparation of the soil. J. C. Rimel bought $30 worth of Currier's fertilizer from Albright & Co., put it on 10 acres of corn and he says it has made him $75 worth of corn more than it would have made. He demonstrated this by leaving part of the field without any fertilizer. He also says he has seen other makes of fertilizers, but Currier's makes the best crops.

—Mr. J. H. Melvin, of Dillon and Ed Melvin, of London, spent Sunday in Brodhead. They and Jack Melvin have just returned from Owensboro, where they had been to see their parents, Henry Bower and wife John Wise and wife, of Ohio, were summoned by dispatch to the bedside of their father, Michael Bower, who died before they arrived. You have had notice of the death of Mr. Bower, which was caused by blood poisoning. He was buried in the cemetery at the Christian church Monday. Rev. A. J. Pike gave a very appropriate talk, had reading and prayer. A very large crowd assembled to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased. By his death his wife loses a true and faithful husband, the children a kind and loving father and the community a good citizen. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and friends.

HUBBLE.

—Mr. Ren Smith went home with his brother living in Lexington, Tuesday morning. His wounds are all healed up nicely. Drs. Cook and Peyton deserve great credit for the way they dressed and attended to his wounds. Mr. Gentry's family should never be forgotten for their kindness in seeing him carefully nursed while at their place. Dr. Kinnaird was out to see us last Saturday, for the first time since his illness. He has been badly misused as he is a knowing young doctor and had to drop a large practice for a few weeks. He tells us he is going to attend lectures in New York in December. Clarence Smith, of Hedgeville, is not expected to live but a few days. He has lung trouble.—We got the L. J's, by Lancaster on Tuesday morning this week, so let them come that way all the time.—Eggs have advanced in our town to 15 cents. This is the place to get rid of your old roosters, ducks and geese at a fair price. Joe Swope will begin to build a barn soon in the place of the one burned.—M. Luce is covering his dwelling.—J. W. Bright has gone on a fishing expedition at Spillman's mill.—R. L. White has sold his last spring crop of wool at 23 cents per pound.—Mrs. Wm. Underwood has been on the sick list a few days, but is better. R. R. Gentry seems to be making votes as he canvasses this neighborhood.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—Mr. Evan Foley, a widower of 51 and Mrs. H. S. Emory, 43, and twice a widow, were married at Mr. F. J. Jones', near Preachersville, Wednesday. The groom is a citizen of Whitley, and the bride is from Rockcastle, and they were visiting Mr. Jones, where they fell in love.

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

As Seen by an Old Resident of Stanford.
(To the Editor Interior Journal.)

SEATTLE, WASH., Oct. 1.—I send you a hastily-penned sketch of the great National Yellowstone Park, as seen by me during a recent visit.

Thinking it might be interesting to many of your readers and to friends in my "Old Kentucky Home," you can give it a place in your valuable paper if esteemed worthy.

On leaving Superior City I had no idea of taking this trip, but at the solicitation of friends concluded to do so. Leaving the main line of the N. P. railroad at Livingston, Mont., a ride on a branch road of 52 miles brought us to a point where the railroad stopped and stage coaches were in readiness to convey all to the Hot Springs in the Park. Some 25 constituted the party. For a special traveling companion I had Mr. Thompson, of St. Louis, a member of the legal fraternity and a most genial and intelligent person. In a very short time after taking stage our attention was called to an eagle's nest. A brood of two eaglets were quietly nestling upon a rocky peak, distant from the stage road only some 50 yards. Further travel showed these noble birds in goodly numbers, never evincing any alarm at the approach of travelers. After a trip of 7 miles, for the most part up a steep mountain, we stopped for the night at the Hot Springs Hotel, a commodious building, with a porch of some 400 feet. From the hotel half a mile are a number of hot springs bubbling up from the mountain tops, the water so hot you can cook an egg in it in two minutes. 'Tis said the bear and elk come near these springs in winter because of the warm temperature. These springs are a wonder and an admiration. Next morning the party started for a five and one-half days' trip through the park. After mountain climbing for several miles we came to the "Golden Gate," a gap in the mountain noted for its beauty and for the great labor and cost to get a road-way over it. A beautiful cascade leaps from the summit and dashes down the gulch with Niagara velocity. The cliffs on either side of the roadway are high and golden in color. Here several kodaks were brought into use to portray and perpetuate the grandeur and beauty of the scenery. After passing through the "gate" we came to an extensive plateau of land, grass-covered, and must afford grazing for the wild animals which abound here. This plain extends for miles until we come to "Mary's Mountain," the highest on our route. Before reaching its summit the aforesaid Mr. Thompson, who was on the outside with the driver, discovered a buffalo lying down. Stopping the stage, a passenger and myself essayed to catch sight of this representative of an almost extinct race, but it fled and was not to be seen by us. In a short distance we found a fresh buffalo track. On top of "Mary's Mountain" is a beautiful lake, called "Mary's Lake." In descending this mountain our John pointed out the place where a year or so ago two buffaloes ran across the road just as the stage was passing, breaking the pole of the vehicle and greatly frightening the passengers. Of this occurrence I remember to have seen a newspaper account just after it happened.

"Tame wild geese," ducks and eagles are seen all along the route. In the evening we reached the Fountain House, another fine hotel. From this place several geysers can be seen. After a good night's rest we resumed our journey, traveling all day in the midst of hot springs and eruptive geysers. Hot springs, clear as crystal, colored like sapphire, emerald and turquoise kept the mind in constant wonder and admiration. Never have I felt more keenly the barrenness of language suitable to express my awe at the marvelous sights which were constantly being met. The "Excelsior Geyser," the largest of any in the formation, was in a state of comparative quiet; it had not erupted since last fall, when it belched forth volumes of sulphurous, burning water and massive stone, the water causing the "Fire Hole" river to rise four feet. The most satisfactory of all the geysers is the "Old Faithful," so called because it never fails to play every 65 minutes, sending up a volume of water 100 feet high as large as a sugar hogshead. Near "Old Faithful" are several interesting geysers—"The Lion," "Lioness" and "Cubs," two of which frequently play at the same time; the "Bee Hive," which sends up its boiling water to a great height, tho' in volume less than some others; the "Sponge" is so called from its close resemblance at its base to a sponge.

But of all the grand sights the Falls of the Yellowstone surpasses them all. The Yellowstone a mile above the falls is quite a wide river, say 400 feet, but narrows as it approaches the cataract, as if gathering its forces for the tremendous leap. It is not more than 30 feet where the plunge is made. Niagara cannot excel it in grandeur and in beauty falls far short. After the abyss below is reached it dashes along as if cutting its way through the hedging mountains. The spray at the foot of the falls ascends hundreds of feet, until o'erlapping the cliffs, it disappears and is gone, ever to be replaced with newly ascending vapor.

This river just below the falls to the eye in size seems but a rivulet, and as the sun casts its rays upon it, looks like a ribbon of gold. About a quarter of a mile below the falls is a most enchanting view. Near by we saw an eagle's nest, with the young birds watching for the return of their progenitors, who were sailing or soaring for trout with which to feed their young. One of our party saw an eagle with a good sized trout in his talons, but he failed to bring it to the nest. The eagle, when looking for fish, on discovering one, shoots down in a straight line with arrow-like swiftness and seizes his prey unerringly.

We saw where the beavers worked and made their dams, also their houses, or huts, built in the water. No civil engineer could evince greater skill in constructing these dams for the purposes for which they are designed.

As this desultory communication is already too prolix, I will close it by giving one or two other descriptions. Of many more that might be mentioned, one is what is termed the Glass Mountain. This mountain had to be blown up by dynamite before a roadway could be secured. Fragments of this glass, or rather what looks like glass, lie in profusion along the roadside, and indeed the road for several hundred feet is macadamized with it. We were permitted to take a few specimens, although the rule is that nothing in the formation shall be taken away.

There are said to be some 400 elk in the park and 75 buffaloes, while bears are innumerable.

When at Yellowstone Park a traveling friend came hurriedly up to my room where I was lying and cried "Get up, colonel, and see a bear!" So on raising the window, sure enough there was a bear, standing erect on his hind feet, taking in the situation. After a few minutes he ran to the woods. It was in open ground we saw him. The proprietor told me that these animals came right up to the hotel in search of something to eat. The night we were at the falls two came to the back porch of the hotel and turned over the slop tubs. Bears are more numerous than hogs in all the country near the Rocky Mountains. No persons are allowed to shoot them, or any game in the Yellowstone Park.

Leaving the upper basin of the park we returned by a more westerly route, traveling for miles up Gardiner river, a rapid and precipitous stream, one of the headwaters of the Missouri. On this stream are several noted springs—the "Soda Spring" and a fountain whose water is precisely in taste with that of the celebrated Apollinaris water.

Returning to Livingston and, having to wait several hours for the Pacific bound train, the time was spent in looking at the sights. A mountain sheep, of steel-mixed color, with patches of white on the hips, smooth hide with no wool, was pointed out as the only living specimens which had been tamed. A mountain goat was also seen here, white, with his body covered with a hairy wool. Last, but not least, a mountain lion, the fiercest and most ferocious beast that roam the Rockies. At nightfall we took the train, Mr. T. and myself, for Seattle, the "Queen City of the Sound."

ONE DOLLAR

To See the Nancy Hanks-Allerton Race.

The report in circulation that the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association intends charging two or three dollars to see the race between Allerton and Nancy Hanks, at Lexington, Thursday, Oct. 15, is untrue and without authority of the Club. We adhere strictly to old prices, and during the meeting the price of admission will be only $1 for men and 50 cents for ladies, except on first day, when ladies will be admitted free. The Association has gone to an immense expense and spent at least $20,000 more than during any previous year. We expect the public to pay it, but not at extortionate prices. All we ask is a liberal patronage at $1, and the public to turn out to our great trot as many days as possible.

ACCOMMODATIONS.

Parties from a distance attending the trots and do not desire hotel accommodations, should apply to R. S. Strader & Son, 74 East Main street, for rooms. These gentlemen are our committee and have under them clerks to wait on the public and boys to show them quarters. This step is taken in order that no extortion can be practiced on strangers.

Respectfully, ED. A. TITTON, Sec'y.

—John and Beth Parton shot and mortally wounded Alvis Parton, on Clear Creek, in Bell county. Policeman Parton, of Pineville, and a posse went to arrest them when Beth escaped and John opened fire on the officer. The policeman returned the fire and shot John twice with his Winchester, once through the abdomen and once through the head. The wounds are fatal.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—Rev. Ben Helm is attending the Synod at Greenville.

—Elder Elliott, of Glasgow, will preach at the Christian church next Sunday.

—Two million suckers, including 8,000 Americans, saw the Holy Coat during exhibition, which is now closed.

—Quarterly meeting services at the Methodist church Saturday and Sunday. Services Saturday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

—Rev. F. D. Hale's church membership at Louisville increased 210 during the year closing Oct. 1 and it now numbers 351. The S-S averages 200.

—The Rev. Samuel Bonedict, for many years rector of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church at Cincinnati, lost his life in an elevator accident Tuesday.

—The 62d annual conference of the Mormons was held at Salt Lake City Monday. There were 10,000 present, including three presidents and 12 apostles. They all with one accord expressed confidence in the early triumph of their faith as the only true religion.

—The Northern Methodists are ever and always dabbling in politics. The conference at Newport resolved after a heated discussion that its members should vote for prohibition candidates for office. Some of the preachers opposed the resolution very strongly, contending that the body had as much right to pledge them to vote the democratic or republican ticket as the prohibition.

—The Ecumenical Methodist Council is in session at Washington. All the branches of the Church, there are 29 of them we believe, springing from the parent church, established by the Wesleys in England 150 years ago, are represented, and laying aside all differences and avoiding all schismatic discussions, are listening to the suggestions of the best men of all divisions and seeking to find means to promote their own cause and the common good. This is the second meeting of the body, which is to convene hereafter every decade.

—Prof. Paul Haupt, chief of the semitic department of the Johns Hopkins University, has just returned from London and Berlin, where he had a conference with noted scholars in reference to a new translation of the Bible. It is proposed to include in this translation not only the Old and New Testaments, but also the apocrypha and pseudepigrapha. Each of the 36 books will be assigned to a competent scholar, the translation to be accompanied by explanatory notes and pictorial representations. The books of the Old Testament will occupy two volumes of 1,000 pages each and the entire Scriptures 6 volumes.

—The Northern Methodists made the following appointments for this the Lexington district: B. F. Whiteman, P. E.; Albany, Charles S. Smith; College Hill, S. F. Kelly; Gradyville, Logan C. Godbey; Highland, John Godbey; Harrodsburg, H. D. Burnett; Harrison, W. N. Calvert; Holly Hill, T. J. Perkins; Lexington, Henry Tuckley; Middleburg, John Thomas; Mintonville, J. M. Stump; Middlesboro, to be supplied; Pineville, Fred Grider; Rowan, W. C. S. Ingram; Salt Lake, C. S. Murkin; Williamsburg, S. G. Pollard; Woodbine, to be supplied.
